

com-
s has
. S.
sid-
Like
ther
at.
lost
lied
om
sed
he

town, or on time. JAS. W. HARRIS.
Evansville Apr. 17, 1872.

TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the undersigned, until the 1st day of May, 1872, for the building of a School House in School District No. 7, in the town of Union. Said proposals must include the materials as well as the labor. The house is to be finished entire, ready for the seats, and all completed by the first day of August next. Plans and specifications may be seen at the "Review" office, in Evansville. The Board of said District reserve the right of accepting such proposals as in their opinion, will be the most favorable to the Deitric.

Wm. B. PATTERSON, Director.
Geo. W. HALL, Treasurer.
DANIEL S. WALDO, Clerk.

Union, April 15, 1872.

One year..
Six month
Three mon
One month
To news d
THE I
By mail, pe
" sh
" th
" on
THE Single copy
In clubs of 1
Ten copies
ADDITION
at club rates.
AN EX
ter-up of a clu
Money
Milwaukee P our risk, and
letters contai

May 8, 1872, Evansville

Review, p. 4, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mr. Wm. Bedford and Mr. D. S. Waldo left via overland route for Dakota. They take along teams and implements for clearing up to establish homesteads.

June 3, 1874, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

Letter From Dakota.

SIoux FALLS, Sep. 12, 1878.

This September afternoon, Marion, my eldest sister, and Jennie, my younger, sit on the summit of one of the beautiful bluffs of Sioux Falls, a delightful little village in the south-eastern part of Dakota territory.

As I gaze around me from this height of 200 feet, or perhaps more, I see our beautiful Sioux River winding its way through a lovely valley, and tumbling over mighty rocks, forming a foaming cataract.

Oh! how beautiful the large island, covered with verdure is on this barren prairie. This island contains nine acres of ground, and its principal trees are elm and oak. Sioux Falls is a thriving little place, and as we sit here, we can see the carpenters at work putting up the frames of business houses as well as residences, and the masons venerating them with brick.

The largest hotel of the place, is a large venerated building. I smile when I think of the surprise Eastern people manifest as they see the beautiful residences, elegantly furnished of some of our citizens.

Before us lies the railroad which was finished through here last month, and on which they are now at work. A great many strangers are coming in every day, some seeking fortunes, and others pleasures; among the latter are six gentlemen, friends of ours, from Evansville, Wisconsin, our former place of residence, surprised us by stepping in upon us unexpectedly. We had a very pleasant visit with them.

One mile beyond the depot is the Cemetery, on the hillside; it is a beautiful yet lovely spot, and a cherished place for us, because, alas! one year ago, we laid all that remained of our beautiful and dearly beloved sister there, and only last month a little niece; just a little while and we too may be laid there.

Our home is just at the foot of the bluff, and Marion and husband think it a pretty place.

Now I am no story writer, my friends, but please accept my poor description of my western home.

BLANCHE P. WALDO.

Miss Now public peration prepare line of Goods I in any served all hour A su fresh ev

Re Will the popu the ning vited

Tea F

WINI AT EVA ROCK AT FU AT NE AT OR AT FO Examense al at th All Supt. ed to a tions. Do r mits, s for the No ed bef then o of the As t Teach trict, e to teac lon w pared A T ansvil by Pr of the A lect of Sep Let ers. Exa are pu ally li Dis attend from Abilit at the char

A. H. Waldo received word Saturday morning, that his father was not expected to live. He took the afternoon train for York State, his old home.
July 3, 1883, Enterprise, p. 1, col. 4, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mr. A. H. Waldo's family took its departure for their future home near Lennox, Dakota, Friday. Mr. Waldo expects to follow with a car-load of goods in a few days. We are sorry to part with such kind neighbors and friends, but wish them all the success and prosperity possible in their new home.

August 7, 1883, Enterprise, p. 1, col. 6, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mrs. Palmer who has been here some weeks attending to the settlement of her mother's estate, the late Mrs. Hoskins, departed for her home in Dakota, Monday. She was accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Waldo who has a son living in Mrs. Palmer's town. Mr. Waldo took along a carload of collaterals remnants of the estate of Mrs. Hoskins, which Mrs. Palmer came into possession of by will. Among the lot he took was a quantity of coal which can be bought here at four dollars per ton less than the cost of coal at Lennox, D. T.

November 5, 1886, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 4, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mr. Frank Waldo, of Lennox, Dakota, is stopping a few days in town. He was summoned hither by the extreme sickness and very doubtful condition of a sister, living in Mr. Miller's family.

August 12, 1887, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

the family name.

—Miss Nancy H. Waldo, who had been sick and bed ridden for nearly nine years, died at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. Almond Miller, at 8 o'clock Monday morning, August 22d, and her remains were taken to Palmyra, the former home of the family, for burial. Miss Waldo was first attacked with diphtheria, and was followed by partial paralysis. In this suffering condition she had lived for nearly nine years, sometimes she has been able to sit up a little, but for most of the time had lain in bed.

For the last two weeks no solid food of any kind has passed her mouth, the least of which would cause great distress.

A postmortem was held shortly after death, and a great number of ulcers and gall stones were found in her system. The doctors attending the examination from the place were, J. M. Evans, J. M. Evans, Jr. C. M. Smith & Son, Drs. Spencer, Quivey, Roberts and Wharton. It was a surprise to all that the girl lived so long as she did. Her age was 30 years.

Her funeral was held at the F. B. church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. A. D. Sanborn preaching the sermon, and her remains were returned to Mr. Miller's house, whence they were taken by the Wednesday morning rail to Palmyra.